Course Content:

The world is never a boring place, whether we are interested in politics, culture, history, security, or art. To understand the world around us, however, we must be engaged citizens of the world. We must try to put ourselves in others’ shoes, to develop a sense of how others perceive the world, what others experience, and to make connections with these differences. The study of international affairs trains us to think more carefully about global issues and encourages us to take action when needed.

This course serves as an introduction to International Affairs, an interdisciplinary program that covers international politics, history, sociology, anthropology, language, and culture. This class is unique in that we will have lectures on a variety of topics, and watch films that enhance your understanding of globalization.

You will be introduced to basic concepts of international affairs, including an introduction to the international system, globalization, and international organizations. We will explore global issues that have become “hot button” issues for policy makers and citizens alike.

Course learning outcomes

By the end of the semester students will be able to:

- Explain globalization and relevant issues through multiple theories, actors, and their interaction.
- Challenge assumptions and values that underlie claims about international affairs.
- Develop practical solutions to complex international problems.
- Think of themselves as active participants in international affairs.

REQUIREMENTS AND GrADING PROCEDURES

Completing ALL the required readings and regular attendance will be required of all students. Material covered in class will not always be covered in the readings and vice versa, you will be responsible for all material regardless of where presented. You will be responsible for each week’s required readings that allow for both broad and more specific examination of the different class themes.

Class participation is an essential component of the requirements for successful completion of this class. Participation consists of being on time for class, having read all assignments prior to the beginning of class, and being an active member in discussion sessions (of course you cannot participate if you are absent).

Class participation will be assessed to the best of my abilities. As long as you are prepared for class and contribute positively to discussion you will receive 100% for participation. It is my goal to provide students with a helpful and meaningful discussion and not to punish non-participation. However, should you be called upon and are unprepared (or absent), you will be marked down accordingly. Students will be called on at random. If you feel apprehensive about the participation policy for any reason, please schedule an appointment to speak with me privately.

Assignments and Quizzes:

1. There will be five unannounced reading/current event quizzes throughout the semester. You may be quizzed either on the readings assigned for that day OR on a current event found in your daily readings of the international sections of major newspapers (see assigned readings below). Failure to read the news is not an excuse! Make it a habit to do this first thing in the morning! These quizzes will be given at the beginning of class, and will be graded pass/fail. If you arrive in class after the quiz has been collected, you will not be permitted to take the quiz and will receive a failing grade. Thus, it is in your best interest to arrive in class on time! There are NO make-up quizzes! I will drop one of the 5 quiz grades.

2. There will be two short writing assignments that will encourage you to try living on 5 dollars a day, and eat non-corn related products. These assignments are designed to allow you to relate course readings to your personal reality and enhance your understanding of poverty and food scarcity related issues (more details below).

Exams:

There will be two exams, which will consist of multiple choice questions, short answer questions and essays. Both exams are non-cumulative. The midterm exam will be on all material, including lectures, readings, and films, covered by that date, while the final exam will be on all material covered after the midterm.

Points will be weighted as follows:

- Midterm Exam 23%
- Final Exam 23%
- Readings/current events quizzes 20% (or 5% each)
- Experience Assignments 24% (or 12% each)
- Participation 10%

MAKE-UPS

Make up exams will be granted at my discretion and a valid excuse is required. The make-up exam will always be a take-home. All excuses (dog died, sister’s wedding etc.) will be judged on an ad hoc basis at my discretion. In the case of a known/planned absence please see me WELL IN ADVANCE.

ACADEMIC HONESTY

Any student who appears to violate the University’s Academic Honesty and Integrity Policy (see http://www.northeastern.edu/osccr/academic-integrity-policy/) may be referred to the University’s Office of Student Conduct and Conflict Resolution. If a proven violation involves an exam or course assignment, the student shall receive a failing grade for the assignment in addition to sanctions imposed by the Office of Student Conduct and Conflict Resolution. Individual faculty, with the support of the Department, can impose harsher penalties as they deem necessary.

The Academic Honesty and Integrity Policy includes cheating, fabrication, plagiarism, and other types of dishonest activities. Plagiarism is defined broadly as taking ideas, concepts, or actual words of another person and passing them off as your own work. Of particular note in recent years is the increase in cut-and-paste plagiarism, which involves downloading phrases from websites or other Internet sources. Your instructor will clarify specific guidelines on fair use of material for this class, but you should regard this as your official warning.

STUDENTS WITH DISABILITIES

If you have a disability that may affect your performance in this class, you should contact the Northeastern University Disability Resource Center (DRC) so that special arrangements can be made to accommodate you. It is your responsibility to do so at the beginning of the semester.

ELECTRONICS AND COURTESY

- Please turn off cell phones, pagers, and “smartphones” during class. Out of courtesy to your classmates and your instructor, please come to class on time and do not leave until the class ends, unless you obtained prior permission, and do not engage in private conversations in class.
• The use of laptops and tablets is prohibited in class except when explicitly permitted by the instructor.
• Use appropriate E-mail etiquette: E-mails to professors should include a polite greeting and a polite personable goodbye at the end, and written in professional language. Never send an e-mail without checking grammar and spelling first.

REQUIRED TEXTS:

Additional required readings will be posted on-line on Blackboard, NU’s online class system. On Blackboard you can keep track of your grades, class assignments, and readings.

In addition, you will be asked to read the international section of a major newspaper for every class. Examples of acceptable sources are: The New York Times (free online at www.nytimes.com), The Wall Street Journal, or The Guardian (free online at www.guardian.co.uk). Other reliable international news sources include BBC (www.bbc.co.uk) and The Economist (www.economist.com).

GUIDELINES FOR EXPERIENCE ASSIGNMENTS

THE CONTENT

You will be asked to write two short research papers. Each paper should be between 1,200 and 1,500 words (4-5 pages long) typewritten (12p times new roman), double-spaced, with 1 inch margins.

- As seen above, there are two assignments due in the course of the semester. I suggest you keep a journal of your experiences and the difficulties you face trying to fulfill that task.
- You will then use these difficulties (and journal), to relate your experiences to class readings specific to each of the assignments. This means drawing on your experience to validate/critique/comment on ideas and arguments found in class readings.
- The assignments suggest that you try to fulfill each assignment. No penalty for failure, or for not following the requirements to the fullest. The assignment is all about trying what other people experience in their daily lives.
- The first paper is due in class in hardcopy on March 1.
- The second paper is due class in hardcopy on April 12.

Papers that are late will be penalized 10 points per day.
Formatting and other expectations appear below, and papers failing to meet them will lose points.

- Papers must have a separate cover page with your name, the paper title, course number, and date; this is the only place where your name should appear. DO NOT use headers/footers with your name in them. (up to 10 pts. off)
- The paper’s pages must be numbered. DO NOT number the cover page; p. 1 is the first page of text, not the cover page. (10 pts. off if no page numbers) Foot/endnotes, bibliography, charts, appendices, etc., do not count against the page limit.
- Pick one style of citation (e.g. APA, MLA, Chicago) and follow it throughout your paper. Follow the style when it comes to references inside the text or in footnotes, as well as for the bibliography. Long quotations are unacceptable. Citation and quotation issues, up to 10 pts. off.
- Gross failure to proofread and correct obvious errors: up to 10 pts. off.
- Persistent grammar and similar errors: up to 5 pts. off per class of error
- Lateness: 10 pts. off per day late
- Your bibliography should reference at least 2 class readings. Up to 5 pts. off.
- Failure to meet page limit, font, spacing, margins. Up to 5 pts. off per error.
- Failure to follow directions (here and elsewhere in this syllabus). Up to 10 pts. off.
- Failure to have a bibliography page: 10 pts. Off
- A paper that relies primarily on basic reference sources (Wikipedia, CIA World Factbook, Encyclopedia Britannica, etc.) for anything but statistics, election returns, and similar data will not earn a grade higher than a C. If you are unsure about whether a source fits in this category, all you have to do is ask me or your section leader.

Plagiarism
Northeastern University defines plagiarism as using words, ideas, data, code, or other original academic material of another without providing proper citation or attribution. Plagiarism can apply to any assignment, either final or drafted copies, and it can occur either accidentally or deliberately.

You are plagiarizing if you do the following:
1) Incomplete paraphrasing. If you use substantive words, phrases, or rhetorical structures from your source without documentation, you are plagiarizing. Whether you "kidnap" one or two words or a whole page, you are plagiarizing.
2) Missing citation. If you use any ideas that are clearly NOT common knowledge without citing your source, you are plagiarizing. It does not matter whether you've expressed the ideas in your own language.
3) Copying. If you simply copy from any source without quotation marks or attribution, you are plagiarizing.

Among the practices which constitute plagiarism/cheating are: using in their entirety or even in part recycled papers or papers from another course or teacher or papers written by someone else, either by a student or a person publishing a paper in an academic journal or book.

The best advice is to cite all sources as clearly as possible in all matters except shared common knowledge. Students unclear as to whether or not a source requires citation should speak with their professor or consult the Writing Center in 412 Holmes Hall. (Parts of the above statement are excerpted from Northeastern University’s Academic Integrity Policy, found here: http://www.northeastern.edu/osccr/academic-integrity-policy/)
Title IX

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects individuals from sex or gender-based discrimination, including discrimination based on gender-identity, in educational programs and activities that receive federal financial assistance.

Northeastern’s Title IX Policy prohibits Prohibited Offenses, which are defined as sexual harassment, sexual assault, relationship or domestic violence, and stalking. The Title IX Policy applies to the entire community, including male, female, transgender students, and faculty and staff.

If you or someone you know has been harassed or assaulted, confidential support and guidance can be found through University Health and Counseling Services staff (http://www.northeastern.edu/uhcs/) and the Center for Spiritual Dialogue and Service clergy members (http://www.northeastern.edu/spirituallife/). By law, those employees are not required to report allegations of sex or gender-based discrimination to the University.

Alleged violations can be reported non-confidentially to the Title IX Coordinator within The Office for Gender Equity and Compliance at: titleix@northeastern.edu and/or through NUPD (Emergency 617.373.3333; Non-Emergency 617.373.2121). Reporting Prohibited Offenses to NUPD does NOT commit the victim/affected party to future legal action.

Faculty members are considered “responsible employees” at Northeastern University, meaning they are required to report all allegations of sex or gender-based discrimination to the Title IX Coordinator.

In case of an emergency, call 911.

Please visit www.northeastern.edu/titleix for a complete list of reporting options and resources both on- and off-campus.
