Teaching:

I teach courses in bioethics, business ethics, the philosophy of law, and global justice in the College of Social Sciences and Humanities. In spring 2018, I taught a new seminar on the ethics of philanthropy. My teaching at Northeastern University School of Law includes courses in bioethics and the law and in global law. In addition, between 2004 and 2007, I co-taught a seminar with Dr. James Sabin to residents in psychiatry at Harvard Medical School on out-patient psychiatry, ethics, and the law, and in spring 2017, I led a study group at the Harvard Kennedy School of Government on the ethics of philanthropy.
