

COMBINED MAJORS IN CSSH

Combined majors provide students with the opportunity to study important questions and problems from different perspectives, using multiple frameworks and methodologies.

Some students choose a combined major because the program is particularly well suited for graduate study. Other students may be drawn to a combined major because the program aligns well with their professional goals. Still other students may decide to pursue a combined major because they are interested in a broad topic or policy area and are not yet sure of their post-graduation goals. In all cases, combined majors provide students with flexibility to pursue their interests and passions.

A combined major comprises at least nine courses from two single majors, plus one or more integrative “bridge” courses.
